Socio-economic counselling

As part of socio-economic counseling, we provide information on how to apply for scholarships, what options the university offers in the event of an unexpected deterioration of your social or financial situation (e.g. in your family), you can register on a list of students interested in part-time jobs, and we also provide basic advice on tuition fees. We are also here for students who care for their children or other persons while studying. If it is useful for your situation, we can also provide lists of foundations that offer additional support to students in socio-economically disadvantaged circumstances.

We provide personal, written, and telephone consultations.
