Overview of accessibility

Description of the building

The pavilion is part of the premises of the University Hospital of Královské Vinohrady. The building houses the Institute of Nursing and the Institute of Languages.

Entrance

Access to the building from the nearest bus stop in Ruská Street is particularly complicated. The road to the premises has a significant slope (up to 14%) with major surface inconsistencies.

The entrance to the building is from a landing between the 1st and 2nd above-ground floors. The single-panel door (width 85 cm) with a threshold (height 4 cm) opens mechanically outwards. The doorbell (height 162 cm) is located in a niche (depth 15 cm). There is a stair landing behind the entrance. A slanted stair platform is installed on the stairway to the 2nd above-ground floor (load capacity 225 kg; manoeuvring area dimensions: width 83 cm, depth 94 cm). The restricted lower platform only allows entering from the side. The platform is not self-service. Use of the platform must be arranged with the staff.

Interior

On the 2nd above-ground floor, there is the Department of Dentistry, a lecture room (doorwidth 90 cm, threshold height 2 cm), and a modified toilet (see Sanitaryfacilities). The door to the central corridor of the floor has two panels (mainpanel width 72 cm, secondary panel width 81 cm) with a doorbell (height 118cm).

The next floor of thebuilding, where the offices and classrooms of the Institute of Nursing and theInstitute of Languages are located, is connected only by a multi-levelstaircase.

The doors and other passagesare a minimum of 80 cm wide, with the exception of the entrances from thestaircase to the central corridors of the individual floors (main panel widthmin. 72 cm, secondary panel width min. 81 cm).

The manoeuvring space in the interioris sufficient.
